I am writing to ask the FDA to NOT require fresh citrus juice processors to pasteurize their products.

Responsible citrus juice processors are already producing an exemplary product, which is very safe. I have personally sampled many of them. They are delicious and I have never heard of a health problem with fresh, non-pasteurized citrus juice products.

Responsible companies are very serious about product safety. Requiring them to treat their product in a way that would damage it is not an answer. It is possible to product a safe, fresh, citrus juice product. It is currently being done. Please do not formulate new regulations that would damage the fresh citrus juice industry.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

David G. Willbur Jr.
